Need For Water From Lake Seen As Unlikely Here

It is unlikely Hoffman Estates will need Lake Michigan water in the foreseeable future, said Joseph Smedile, chief engineer for the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission.

His comment came Thursday before the village's public works committee.

"If people are expecting water from the lake tomorrow, in two years or the next five years, I don't think they're going to get it," he said. "Plans can't be implemented in five years."

Smedile appeared before the committee to acquaint the village officials with NIPC water development programs. Chairman Mrs. Virginia Hayter expressed a concern that the village has "no long range plan beyond the next five years in water development."

HOFFMAN ESTATES will have four deep wells next spring, and now has three shallow wells. Smedile said, if the village "keeps enough open space, aquifers feeding those wells should remain naturally rechargeable."

"Shallow aquifers are rechargeable locally and are not now exploited to their maximum extent," he added. Supt. of Public Works John Hossack, said the village is now 30 per cent covered by impermeable surface and its shallow wells have performed well.

Smedile said that was "a good indicator." But Mrs. Hayter fears extensive development of low-density areas in South Barrington and Barrington Hills would create a shortage of water in the village.

"Money controls zoning," Mrs. Hayter said. "As the price of that land goes up, the economics of the situation say it will be sold and developed. NIPC's long-range plan for low density there is unrealistic."

SMEDILE SAID THE Barrington area wants to remain alone, and that the village can appeal any rezoning of that area to the county because it is within 1½ miles of Hoffman Estates.

Money available from NIPC to finance water development is limited, he added. Top priority is given to projects with the most important sociological impact, such as underdeveloped and underprivileged areas, Smedile said.

Smedile asked the committee to consider if it is charging enough for water. Committee reception was cool to any rise in price to finance water development projects necessitated by expansion.

If the village were to decide on applying for an allocation of water from Lake Michigan, Smedile said it would be best to coordinate efforts with other villages, because water would have to be piped out from the Chicago city limits.

Break Ground For Civic Center Here

Ground was broken Saturday for a drizzling rain for the Schaumburg Civic Center, Schaumburg Road east of Roselle Road.

Mayor Robert Atcher officiated at the brief ceremonies attended by about 30 community leaders involved with the $1.1 million project.

Bill Lambert, donor of the 40-acre site, turned the first shovel of mud as Atcher, village board members and trustees watched.

Atcher told the group that Lambert's land donation was worth $1 million.

ORIGINAL BOARD members Frank Wiley, Walter Slingerland, and Ellsworth Meineke and original plans commission member Lois Wiley also spoke briefly to the group.

Atcher said that while other villages built civic centers as soon as they were incorporated and then outgrew them and had to tear them down, "Schaumburg waited until we could determine how big a building we would need when Schaumburg stopped growing."

The new building is expected to serve the village for 50 to 100 years, and is being built without taxing residents. "The money's already there," Atcher said. "These men have made important decisions through the years."

Construction is scheduled to begin this week on phase one of the facility, Pritscher and Erbach won the contract with a low bid of $704,370.

Slingerland told the group that the village had come a long way since he was on the board. He remembered one time when the board spent an hour figuring out where they could get $3.50 for stationery.

DUCKS AND GEESE surried in their pen as did the Sika deer of Schaumburg's Town Square animal yard as heavy rains hit the area. Water rose so high in the pen that even the deer were in water. Area residents were more fortunate. Severe water damage was relatively tame in the area compared to other suburbs. (Photo by Mike Seeling)

Suburbs Still Mopping Up After Storm

It was one storm too many for the suburbs.

Beleaguered all summer by damaging storms and excessive rain, residents and public works crews are still mopping, picking and cleaning up today after the worst of them all.

Friday's downpour not only was the worst of the summer, but the worst in memory for many communities in the sheer volume of water and the damage it left behind.

It was a comparatively mild storm in terms of wind destruction, with the highest official recording 30 miles per hour at O'Hare field, and some reports of funnel clouds but no verification of any touching down.

It was the water that did the damage, and that damage is now estimated well up into the millions of dollars. The actual dollar figure is incalculable, because so much of it is in what was inflicted on single family homes, furnishings and private possessions. It was a disaster in those terms, but not the kind that is easily measurable in the suffering visited on residents in their flooded garages, basements, living areas and yards.

IT WAS SO severe that few homes or apartment buildings escaped without some impact from the rain. Literally thousands of homes were inundated, many that had never before been affected by heavy rains or flooding in this area. Most common was basement flooding, up to eight feet deep in some homes. Sewers were reported backed up by the thousands.

Hundreds of streets and highways were awash during the rain, some so deep in water they were impassable during the storm, and even into Saturday.

Official U.S. Weather Bureau figures do not tell the magnitude of the storm, because the official reporting station — Midway Airport — recorded little more than an inch of rain during the peak of the deluge.

In the Northwest suburban area, reports ranged from 3½ inches in Hoffman Estates to 4 inches in Mount Prospect and 5 inches in parts of unincorporated Palatine. The rainfall locally seemed to be the worst in the southern portions of the northwest suburbs, and it clearly was the worst in the western suburbs, where up to 7 inches fell.

In this area, south Rolling Meadows, south Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village had the worst of the flooding.

Evacuations had to be undertaken at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road, with tenants moved to the Rolling Meadows City Hall, and from the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, with residents moved to several locations, including to a motel and Elk Grove High School. In south Mount Prospect, at Golf and Busse roads, residents pitched in to build a sandbag dike around a retention basin under construction for fear it would spill over.

Those were among the more dramatic events, but mostly it was a case of general misery brought on by too much water and nowhere for it to go.

Wheeling and Buffalo Grove had their usual flooding, especially in homes along Buffalo Creek and the Wheeling Drainage Ditch, and Wolf Road went under water.

In Des Plaines, the storm caused basement flooding in several areas, especially the south side.

Mannheim Road motels suffered both wind and flooding damage south of the city in Rosemont. Mannheim was closed south of Touhy Avenue until early yesterday.

day because of high water, which had risen to two or three feet in depth at some points.

GUESTS AT the Imperial 400 Motel, Mannheim at Higgins Road, were removed by row boat after the storm. The O'Hare Inn, Mannheim and Higgins, was also evacuated. Parking areas at the motels and the viaduct at Higgins and the Soo Line tracks east of Mannheim Road were both reported flooded yesterday by Rosemont police.

In Park Ridge, police reported that a funnel cloud picked up a squad car Friday night, moved it a few feet and then set the car down with no injury to its

Faulty brakes caused a car to overturn on Barrington Road just south of Higgins Road Friday.

Deborah E. Clemens, 18, 261 Hermitage Dr., Hoffman Estates, attempted to stop while southbound on Barrington Road. The brakes of her 1969 Opel malfunctioned, causing her to drive off the pavement into a field, Police said. The car then rolled over several times.

Police report there were no injuries.

TV Stolen

A television and valuable crystal drinking glass were reported stolen Saturday.

Robert Sullivan, 2180 Hassell Rd., Apt. 105, Hoffman Estates, called police upon realizing the items were missing. Sullivan valued the television, a mini, battery-operated one, at $169. He said the glass was worth approximately $350.

Police theorized a screwdriver was used to pop open the dead bolt on the front door of the apartment. Other small items, such as a radio, were not taken.

THE METROPOLITAN SANITARY DISTRICT OF GREATER CHICAGO

'Area Should Handle Own Wastewater'

by ANNE SLAVICEK
First of Two Parts

The Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) chose a site in Des Plaines for a new sewage treatment plant because the MSD feels each area should have a plant to handle its own wastewater, Ben Sosewitz, MSD superintendent said last week.

"We feel there should be a plant within each drainage basin area to handle the waste load for that area. For too long that has not been the case and it has particularly not been the case in the Northwest suburbs," Sosewitz said.

The MSD superintendent pointed out to Stickney which he said had to suffer the stigma of having sewage for other areas piped into its community for treatment.

Sanitary sewage and combined storm-sanitary sewage from the Northwest suburbs have been "somebody else's problem" for too long, Sosewitz charged.

SOSEWITZ MADE his remarks in defense of the MSD's position in a recent dispute with the City of Des Plaines over locating the plant on the 105-acre site at the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

The proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant on the site would serve a 58-square-mile area in the Northwest suburbs.

Among the communities which would be wholly or partially served by the plant would be Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines, Glenview, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village.

The Des Plaines City Council recently filed a suit to stop the MSD from building the plant on its site. An earlier suit filed by Des Plaines was decided in favor of the sanitary district.

YET DESPITE the city's opposition to the MSD building a sewage treatment facility in Des Plaines, Sosewitz says he thinks the MSD has, "a good relationship with the administration, with the city council and with the population of Des Plaines."

"Specifically we do not have good relations with 8th Ward Alderman Alan Abrams," Sosewitz said.

The MSD superintendent said that although he had not met Abrams until recently he believes there "is a political aspect on a local level which I can't identify completely," motivating Abrams to oppose the plant.

"Abrams has generated a hornets' nest in his ward," Sosewitz said.

HE EXPLAINED HE can understand that Des Plaines officials "have a greater vested interest" in what is built in Des Plaines and that they are concerned about the loss of taxable land and the economic structure of the city.

But there is limited space for a sewage treatment plant available in the Northwest suburban area, Sosewitz said, and the Des Plaines site is needed for the plant.

The MSD did consider other sites before it acquired the 105-acre site in Des Plaines, Sosewitz said.

Des Plaines residents have pointed to a piece of property at O'Hare Airport as a possible site for the plant, but Sosewitz says that strong opposition from the City of Chicago and from the Federal Aviation Administration to a sewage treatment plant on airport land makes location of the plant there unfeasible.

The district also considered a site in the unincorporated area diagonally across from the current site, Sosewitz said, but was unable to acquire the land. Now the district is still seeking that site for a retention basin for flood control.

Sosewitz explained that 370 acres of flood control storage are needed in conjunction with the O'Hare plant to stop flooding from surface drainage and from combined sanitary-storm sewers within the area which will be served by the O'Hare plant.

THE DISTRICT OWNS 100 acres at O'Hare which it will use for some of that flood control, the City of Chicago owns 50 acres at O'Hare which it is willing to make available, and the district is considering purchasing two other sites in unincorporated areas — one of 135 acres and one of 85 acres — for additional stormwater storage.

Hanrahan Bids To Halt 'Garnishing'

Cook County State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan announced Friday he has taken action to stop the garnishment of bank accounts by creditors in cases where the debtor has been given no notice or opportunity to defend himself.

Hanrahan said many individuals who sign installment or loan contracts containing "confession of judgment" clauses first learn a judgment has been entered against them when told their bank account has been garnished.

To stop that practice, Hanrahan said he delivered a legal opinion to Matthew Danaher, clerk of the county Circuit Court. The state's attorney said the opinion includes a recommendation that Danaher refuse to accept affidavits for non-wage garnishments where there has been no prior notice to the debtor.

HANRAHAN SAID he based his opinion on recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions prohibiting creditors from garnishing bank accounts when the debtor has not been notified and given an opportunity to present defenses to the contentions.

"This opinion reflects our concern with protecting the constitutional rights of all citizens regardless of their economic condition," Hanrahan said. "Due process of the law means that no person can be deprived of his property or of his rights without prior notice and an opportunity for a fair and impartial court hearing at which he can defend himself. This opinion extends that protection to every person having a savings or checking account."

Hanrahan said for the average person using a checking account only as a convenient means for paying bills, such garnishment can be a disaster. "Not only is he embarrassed by the creditors whose checks fail to clear before the garnishment, but he also faces the difficulty of providing the necessities of life for himself and his family until the next paycheck," Hanrahan said.

Let's Give Our Elders A Break

by MARY HUTCHINGS

If an old man is twice a child, in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates his second childhood is most often one of economic dependency.

While metropolitan communities in other parts of the nation offer discounts to senior citizens at local merchants, few entrepreneurs here think the elderly clientele is significant.

More than 600 persons 65 or older live in our two communities, according to the last census, but they generally cannot afford to live in the style of most young suburbanites.

The few local merchants who express their appreciation to senior citizens through discounts are to be commended. Others could well emulate those leaders, which include Schaumburg Village Cab Co., Woodfield Theater, Woodfield Bank and Playgirl beauty salon, opening in October.

SENIOR CITIZENS enrich a community with a perspective uniquely theirs. While young suburbanites look forward to living their golden years in comfort, it seems unfair that for most of the elderly living in their community means little more than scraping by.

A few pennies saved here and there on drugs, cosmetics, haircuts, transportation services, food and clothing would make life a little easier for those who have seen their moments of greatness flicker.

Those few pennies would mean even more than simply stretching a fixed income of social security or pension benefits. Discounts for the elderly would be a gesture of welcome to older persons here.

While some entrepreneurs in the two villages last week said flatly they do not want older clientele, some seemed receptive to the idea "if there were a demand for it." Most were surprised to hear older people live here at all.

THIS ISN'T EXACTLY a geriatric haven, and the older persons here are not invalids incapable of caring for themselves. Even if seniors live with their families, the desire to remain as independent as possible is strong.

It seems incumbent on the elderly to at least inquire about discounts at all places where they do business.

Hopefully somebody will listen. Chambers of commerce or merchants' associations would most probably be hailed by the public in any effort to give the older citizens a better position — economically and socially — in the community.

As Robert Browning said, "in the last of life, for which the first was made," it's time to ask the elderly to grow old comfortably along with us, and hope "the best is yet to be."

Recreation Program Supervisor Named

The Schaumburg Park District board approved the hiring of Sharon Mattiotta as program supervisor for the district's recreation program.

The position is a new full-time opening created to increase supervisory staff in the recreation department. Miss Mattiotta will work as an assistant to Jeff Fox, superintendent of recreation for the park district.

Fox said Miss Mattiotta has worked part-time for the park district for two years. She has programmed many of the districts women's athletic and recreation programs.

Miss Mattiotta will take charge of supervising many of the park programs and planning special event activities, Fox said.

She is scheduled to begin her new assignment Sept. 5.

Boys' Football Group To Elect New Officers

The Schaumburg Boys' Football Association will hold its annual election of officers at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 11 at the Jennings House, 220 S. Civic Dr., Schaumburg.

New officers elected at this meeting will take office Jan. 1, 1973.

All members of the association will be entitled to vote. Balloting will close at 9:30 p.m.

READY FOR ACTION . . . Bob Ciner, Schaumburg Civil Defense director, places a stretcher into the unit's new emergency van. Civil Defense groups in both Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg are currently seeking new members to bolster their ranks.

They're The Silent Servants

Churchgoers, Too, Helped By The CD

by STEVE BROWN

A casual observer probably would not notice the men as they go about their work. They are silent servants in a sense, always there to help, always there to pitch in in an emergency.

Other observers might conjure up an eerie doomsday impression about the Civil Defense groups in the area, but on a day-to-day, week-to-week basis the men who fill these roles serve a much more practical purpose.

A churchgoer in Hoffman Estates or Schaumburg should have a real appreciation of the work of CD. Each Sunday the Civil Defense crews move out to give the motoring public a hand to get to and from services.

"Everybody gives up a Sunday morning a month to direct the traffic near churches," said Richard Monaghan, Civil Defense director in Hoffman Estates, describing his operation.

WHILE BOTH groups have training for nuclear attacks, they undoubtedly get more practice assisting police and fire departments handling severe storms and other natural emergencies.

"We were out a lot of hours in the last two big storms," said Hy Yeargin of the Schaumburg CD unit. He said men assisted with traffic control, watching downed power lines. The storms last month gave the men in Hoffman Estates lot of action too. There they also worked in salvage operations with the fire department.

Both groups conduct regular training sessions, usually in conjunction with their monthly meetings. The training is conducted by police and fire personnel.

Both groups also are looking for new members. Spokesmen from each village are quick to point out the program is completely voluntary.

In Hoffman Estates men may volunteer when they reach the age of 18. In Schaumburg the age is 21.

"There also may be some physically fit retired persons in the community who are interested," Yeargin observed.

MONAGHEN EXPLAINED that while the Hoffman Estates group will accept 18-year-old members, they cannot participate in reserve police functions or ride in police squad cars until they are

The Schaumburg group will be taking its recruiting program to local shopping centers in the near future in an effort to sign new men. Yeargin said a new van outfitted with lights and sirens will be used as an information center at which residents can obtain details about Civil Defense. The Schaumburg unit also holds regular monthly meetings on the second Monday of each month, at the Jennings House, 220 S. Civic Dr.

In Hoffman Estates, regular monthly training sessions will be the third Wednesday of September at the village hall, 1200 Gannon Dr.

police officer driver. High winds, possibly the same funnel cloud, did heavy damage to the Marriott Motor Hotel, 8535 W. Higgins, Chicago.

Police said flooding had ended yesterday in Park Ridge but city crews with the help of National Guard units were busy cleaning up large numbers of trees that had blown down on that city's streets.

Flowing water caused inconvenience for residents of Schaumburg Township, but the effects were not longlasting and the damage appeared slight.

During the torrent Friday night some problem — prone intersections were closed with local police manning the roadways and warning motorists of dangerous areas.

The intersection of Roselle and Higgins Road was closed off during the night because of high water and large pools of standing water on Higgins and Schaumburg roads caused cars to become disabled. Residents had some complaints, too.

Paul Grandi, who lives on Wakefield Lane in Schaumburg, said the rushing water brought debris and garbage into the area. Grandi claimed there was evidence of rats in the area following the storm and one rat was in his back yard Saturday morning.

"This mess is going to take the rest of the summer to clean up," Grandi said.

In other areas, much of the water was confined to open fields. Campanelli field was a lake, but as one resident said, "better in the field than in my house."

ELECTRICAL SERVICE was seriously interrupted throughout the suburbs, with some 40,000 homes out in all, and more than 5,000 in the Northwest suburbs. Des Plaines and Park Ridge were the hardest hit, but in each town some service was out, including numerous cases where the power line connecting to the house was down. Major service has been restored, but as of yesterday, Commonwealth Edison crews were still working on individual problems.

There were minor problems with telephone service in the Northwest area, nothing to compare to the combined 38,000 home phones out in Naperville and Lombard.

Golf-Higgins Reroute Ready By November

Realignment of the Golf-Higgins roads intersection is to be finished in mid-November, when the junction will fully open to traffic.

Originally the intersection improvements, including special turn access lanes and signal lights, were to have been finished by Oct. 1, said Kap Lieu, project director for the state highway department. But preliminary work by utility firms slowed progress, Lieu said.

Currently Northern Illinois Gas Co. is relocating an 8-inch gas main. The move is to be finished this week, and work on the roadway then can be resumed, said Lieu.

Thus far, the state has completed sewer work. It next will form embankments relocating Higgins Road east of the intersection. Grading then will be started on the Golf Road segment north of the junction and final work will be grading the north half of Higgins Road west of the intersection.

Resident Earns Army Commendation Medal

The Army Commendation Medal for outstanding meritorious service has been awarded to First Sgt. Gene L. Archibald, 400 Hickory Ln., Schaumburg.

Archibald earned the award for service while assigned to the Illinois Army National Guard in support of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command from August, 1963 to May, 1972.

Maj. Gen. R. M. Lilly, deputy commander, ARADCOM, made the presentation in July to cite Archibald's "sound judgment, professional knowledge, cheerful attitude, high standards and successful operation of his military assignment."

Archibald, who has seven children and a foster child, is the new Cubmaster from St. Peter Lutheran Church, Schaumburg, Pack 196.

Teachers, School Bd. Fail To Hold Meeting

No negotiations meetings between the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education and the district's teachers were held over the weekend, although spokesmen for both sides say they are willing to meet.

In addition, no one on either side was certain Sunday whether a meeting will be held today, although Supt. Richard Kolze said it was "under consideration."

The board and Dist. 211 Education Association have been deadlocked in talks on the 1972-73 teachers contract for about five months. Last week 235 of the district's 380 association members voted to support their association in the dispute with the board.

The main issue separating the two sides is the question of whether working conditions like class size and teacher evaluation should be included in the new contract.

THE TEACHERS want guarantees on working conditions in the contract, but the board has offered to form committees to study the problems instead. In addition, the two sides have reached no agreement on 1972-73 salaries.

As best it could be reconstructed Sunday, the following events surrounded attempts to hold a negotiations meeting over the weekend:

On Thursday, Doug Verdonck, president of the Education Association, reported at a regular school board meeting that the teachers had supported the association position on the contract. He asked for a meeting between the board and association negotiations' teams for Friday.

Following a closed session that lasted more than two hours, the board directed Supt. Kolze to arrange a negotiations meeting for Saturday afternoon.

However, both Kolze and Verdonck agree that the board wanted Saturday's meeting to be closed to the public, teachers and press. Past negotiations meetings have been open, although the law allows them to be closed.

Verdonck said the association refused to meet behind closed doors and instead asked to meet Saturday in public. He said Kolze then relayed the board's refusal to meet under those circumstances.

Verdonck said the association officials then sent certified letters to board members and Kolze asking for a meeting Monday. "We want to meet with them," Verdonck said.

Robert Seger, head of the board's negotiation team, said he had been hoping for a meeting Saturday afternoon and scoffed at the idea of the certified letters.

"They say they're going to send a certified letter asking for a meeting Monday and we don't get mail until Monday," he said.

Seger added, "I'm available for meetings and I've kept my calendar open. Apparently the teachers would rather put out news releases than come to us."

The two sides have not had a negotiations meeting since Aug. 14. Students are scheduled to return to school this morning and the teachers have said they will also return to work even though they have no contract.

Three Fountains Hit By Flood Waters

by DOUG RAY
At noon Saturday, the dark waters of Salt Creek ran past the Three Fountains Apartment Complex in Rolling Meadows carrying downstream the torrential outpouring of the night before.

Dozens of residents stood along the bank watching the murky tide which had cost some of them thousands of dollars. Their cars were submerged in 15 feet of water in a basement parking lot near the creek.

"I've got a Grand Prix and a Toronto down there," sighed Joseph Englander. "There are a lot more down there too."

Englander and his wife slept through the storm. When they awakened it was too late to salvage the cars from the rising waters in the basement.

"I went down there and the water was up to here," he said making an imaginary line designating the water was waist high. "We couldn't get the cars out... there was nothing we could do."

Before morning the basement was completely flooded with a crest nearly reaching the first floor apartments. Waters had risen to the top step of the basement.

The gushing waters rushed down a slight hill Friday night and into the underground garages. "It looked like a river coming down to the building," said Mrs. Englander.

At dawn, the intense odor of gasoline from the basement pervaded the first floor corridors of the apartment building. The halls were pitch black. Electrical power was cut for safety precautions at 2 a.m.

Persons living on the first floor were gone — evacuated by civil defense units in the early morning when it looked as if the waters might invade the apartment units.

Many were given overnight housing by neighbors. Some were taken to a nearby motel until there were no more available rooms. The remainder, about 40 persons, spent the night at Rolling Meadows City Hall with members of the civil defense unit.

Dick Murphy was one of the lucky ones at Three Fountains. "I got down there (in the basement) and the water was up to the floorboard of my car... it took eight of us to push it out... I didn't think we were going to make it," he said.

His car was parked on high ground across the street. Dozens more were alongside. More than a foot of water stood at spots on the road.

Although it continued to sprinkle rain, the damage already had been done.

Floods Drive 100 From Trailer Park

More than 100 persons from the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, north of Elk Grove Village, were homeless and damage to houses and buildings in the village went into the millions in the aftermath of Friday night's storm.

Elk Grove Village Fire Chief and Civil Defense Director Allen Hulett called it "the worst storm in the village's history," dropping seven inches of rain in two hours, flooding homes, streets and public buildings. No deaths or serious injuries were reported.

Parts of the village were without sanitary sewage facilities for about 36 hours and electric power was out in certain sections for 16 hours. The main sanitary lift station at Ridge Avenue and Elk Grove Boulevard was damaged and unable to send raw sewage north to connecting pipes in Mount Prospect for treatment.

Elk Grove Boulevard, closed since Friday night, was to be reopened sometime Sunday. Village police said cars were found in drainage ditches or stalled during the heavy rain.

SCHAUMBURG Civil Defense and Elk Grove Village firemen evacuated residents of the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, 941 Higgins Rd., by boat Saturday. About 25 families were taken to the Holiday Inn at Busse and Landmeier roads, and another 25 persons were given shelter in the Elk Grove High School Fieldhouse.

Hulett said raw sewage was flowing in Salt Creek and Cook County Health Department officials ordered the trailer park closed about 3 p.m. Saturday. Some of the families in the 170 trailers in the court chose to stay even though gas and electricity had been shut off. Hulett said hopefully all families would be back in their mobile homes by Tuesday.

Water from the storm completely filled the basement of the Elk Grove Village Public Library. Hulett said much of the heating and other equipment was damaged, and it took more than 24 hours of pumping to drain the building.

Pumpers from Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates aided the village fireman in pumping out about eight feet of water from Alexian Brothers Medical Center. Flooding was also reported at Admiral Byrd, Grantwood and Ridge schools in the village. About $1.5 million in damage was sustained by the Centex North Plaza Office Building, 700 Nicholas Blvd. Ten offices in the basement of the building, including a record center for Andy Granatelli's STP automotive supply, suffered $200,000 damage.

DONALD VELLER, 189 Basswood Ct., suffered the worst residential damage when the lower-living section of his home completely filled to the rafters. Twenty other residences in the same Wildwood Road and Shadywood Lane area required pumping by Elk Grove Village fire-trucks.

Maryanne Lindahl, 690 A Versailles Dr., said about 9 p.m. Friday she spotted a tornado funnel cloud "dancing over the Suburban National Bank" in the Devon Avenue shopping center. "I was shopping with the children when we saw the cloud bouncing, twirling and spinning like a top," she said. "It was an odd but frightening sight."

Hulett reported that no tornadoes touched down in the village. He said it will take months for parts of the village to be completely cleaned up.

Pucinski Challenges Sen. Percy To A Series Of Debates

Latest among the challenges for debates among candidates in the November election has been issued by U.S. Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-11th, to his Republican opponent, incumbent Sen. Charles H. Percy.

Pucinski proposed that Percy meet him on seven occasions at sites, and on corresponding dates, where Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas conducted their historic debates in their 1858 contest for the Senate. (The first date, Aug. 21, is past. Pucinski suggested they conduct a debate in Chicago in lieu of the appearance made on that date by Lincoln and Douglas in Ottawa.)

The schedule proposed by Pucinski: Freeport, Aug. 27; Jonesboro, Sept. 15; Charleston, Sept. 18; Galesburg, Oct. 7; Quincy, Oct. 13; and Alton, Oct. 15.

PERCY THIS week sent a letter to Illinois Secretary of State John W. Lewis and all 102 county clerks in the state urging "aggressive implementation of state election laws to maximize voter registration."

The senator pointed out that nearly a quarter of Illinois' eligible voters are not registered.

Of the 7 million eligible voters, only 5.2 million — 76 per cent — are registered, Percy said. In past elections, he pointed out, up to 83 per cent have been registered. It would take registration of 400,000 new voters to achieve that level this year.

WILLIAM B. ROSE, Democratic candidate for the state Senate in the 3rd Legislative District, has launched an attack on lingering road construction in the Northwest suburbs which he charged has seriously inconvenienced motorists and caused business losses to merchants.

He cited Arlington Heights, Higgins, Oakton and Dempster streets and questioned why those streets remain nearly impassable while construction equipment periodically "disappears" for periods of time.

Owner of the Maitre d' Restaurant in Elk Grove Village, Rose said that the shopping center adjoining his restaurant has lost business for more than two years because the intersection of Arlington Heights and Higgins road has been continually torn up.

He described Gov. Ogilvie's road-building program in the area as "chaotic," but said he was sure "most of this work will be completed in time for the governor to cut his ribbons just before the election in November."

State Rep. David J. Regner of Mount Prospect, Rose's Republican opponent for the Senate, has been elected to the executive committee of the National Association of State Information Systems.

The association was formed in 1969 to advance cooperation between the states in systems analysis, computerization and related management techniques and technology. It assists states by pooling of information on methods of dealing with social, economic and ecological problems.

Regner will serve as legislative liaison for the association to the National Legislative Conference.

A FUND-RAISING buffet supper for Samuel H. Young will be held Thursday, Sept. 7, at Sam Young for Congress Headquarters, 9701 Kenton Ave., Skokie. Young is the Republican candidate in the

Rep. Roman Pucinski

Sen. Charles H. Percy

10th District, opposing U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-2nd.

Donald Rumsfeld, former congressman from the area and now an adviser to President Nixon, is expected to attend, as is U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th.

The $50-per-person event will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Young recently appointed Ralph H. Martin, 410 Pinehurst Dr., and Mrs. Donald Rohrbach, 210 Wisconsin Dr., as co-chairmen of his precinct volunteer organization in Des Plaines.

The Palatine Township Regular Republican Organization is planning its annual fall dance for Saturday, Sept. 30. James Huddleston, deputy township committeeman for special events, recently announced the appointment of Daniel J. Batten, 219 Richards Dr., Palatine, as chairman of the event.

Religion Today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

ATHENS, ALA.—From a distance, the roof of the large and substantially built Hobbs Street Church of Christ in this community of 20,000 looks as if its front end is adorned by a gigantic, surrealistic gargoyles.

Closer scrutiny reveals the remains of a shattered church spire — drooping like a half-peeled banana.

For this church spire was struck by lightning right after a Wednesday evening prayer meeting — and just six days before the minister's daughter won a July 4 beauty contest — clad in a bathing suit.

When the church's four elders reacted to her victory by firing her father, their action, gloriously illustrated by a photo beauteous Becky Marshall, adorned front pages of newspapers throughout the nation and overseas.

None of these elders has as yet pronounced the pre-beauty contest lightning strike a Divine Omen.

But the ministerial substitute they have procured to fill in for fired pastor Charles Marshall has done something of the sort.

FOR TWO SUNDAYS in a row following the sacking of Becky's father, Brother Jerry Humphries (Church of Christ ministers do not use the title Reverend), a handsome and unctuous Bible college official from nearby Florence, Ala., utilized every conceivable Scriptural admonition to try to convince the Bible-devoted congregation to obey and respect their church's elders. (Most clergy preach on texts — some on pretexts.)

Among other things, his sermon on July 30 cited the ominous fate of certain murmurers against the authority of Moses (whom he described as a church elder): they were destroyed by heavenly fire.

Only a remnant of the congregation was present for this sermon, however. For the previous Sunday Brother Humphries had affirmed that Church of Christ elders cannot be removed — even for immorality or if in jail.

This was a bit much for the majority of the congregation, who, having had their petition for the reinstatement of pastor Marshall disdained by the elders, proceeded to organize the Central Church of Christ, with the initial service that Sunday in a rented hall.

Meanwhile back at Hobbs Street Church of Christ, substitute (and apparent candidate for Marshall's pulpit) Humphries, after a dutiful defense of the elders who hired him, made a significant mistake. He allowed questions during the post-sermon Bible class.

Brother Humphries appeared at something of a loss to explain why, if church elders deserve such unquestioning obedience, one elder named Cephas (St. Peter) was strongly and publicly denounced by a comparatively recent convert named Paul (as reported in the Epistle to the Galatians).

But in answer to another question Humphries rapidly replied: "The Apocryphal books have no standing!"

The question related to one of those books between the Old and New Testaments (which some denominations regard as Scriptural) which is the account of Susannah and The Elders.

Adult Education Brochures Mailed

Adult education brochures were mailed last week to all residents in High School Dist. 214.

Two corrections in the brochures have been listed by district officials. The tennis class listed for Forest View High School has been cancelled due to damage to the tennis courts from a storm this summer.

Also, the dog grooming class scheduled for Prospect High School will be held only on Tuesday nights, not on Monday and Tuesday as listed.

Classes start the week of Sept. 18.

SUSANNAH WAS "very fair" and "beauteous"; so much so that the two elders were "inflamed with lust." They attempted to seduce her — and when she resisted, charged her with adultery (a capital crime). (They were, however, exposed in the nick of time by the cross-examination of Daniel.)

While the sometimes stodgy "Memphis Commercial Appeal" published a cartoon captioned "Becky and The Elders," no one here in Athens has contended that the four Church of Christ elders have tried anything like this — certainly not with Becky Marshall.

For this gorgeous 17-year-old is as devout, gentle, courteous and vestally virginal as she is pulchritudinous — an impeccably wholesome young girl who, despite the internationally notorious assiniinity of her church's elders, still wants to attend a Church of Christ college.

Yet her presumably God-given beauty was derided by Brother Humphries, who piously explained that his wife would never swim in public unless "adorned modestly," (specific details of which fashion guide he never managed to provide).

Asked Brother Humphries rhetorically: "Would any Christian woman want that picture (Becky in a one-piece bathing suit) sent to the Lord on Judgment Day?"

$42,000 Court Revenue Back To The Suburbs

Northwest suburban communities received more than $42,000 during July as their share of revenue from the Cook County Circuit Court, according to Court Clerk Matthew Danaher.

Most of the revenue comes from traffic fines.

The distribution of the $42,379 in July brings the total received by Northwest suburban communities for the year to date to $315,016.10. Through July 1971 the same communities had received $346,503.

Des Plaines got the largest share of all county suburbs in July, receiving $10,108 from the county court. The city has also received the largest share for the year to date with $69,262.

Other Northwest suburban communities with their respective shares for July and the year through July are: Elk Grove Village, $8,241 ($62,885); Arlington Heights, $7,229 ($48,266.50); Schaumburg, $5,420 ($39,321.60); Palatine, $2,433 ($23,158.50); and Mount Prospect, $2,766 ($20,651).

Also: Hoffman Estates, $1,612 ($17,836); Rolling Meadows, $2,018 ($15,113.50); Wheeling, $2,044 ($14,687); Buffalo Grove, $288 ($3,615); and Inverness, $220 ($220).

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I enjoy reading your column and hope you can help me. I am 25 years old and have two children. Since I've had them I seem to be losing a lot of hair. I have been told that a person who has been given gas during delivery will lose hair afterward.

I wonder if I'm lacking a certain protein or vitamin. I can scratch my scalp and the hair just falls out. I am on the nervous side lately. I also have been taking diet pills off and on for the past two years. I really don't need them now since I lost all the weight I wanted to lose.

My little girl, who is 3 years old, has long blond hair which hasn't been cut since she was born. It hasn't seemed to grow any more during the past year and her hair seems to be falling out. This is another reason I wonder if we're lacking a vitamin or protein.

I should mention that I have an oily skin problem and wash my hair twice a week.

Dear Reader — It is common for women to lose their hair after pregnancy. The condition is temporary and usually disappears within a year after delivery. This, however, has nothing to do with having a gas anesthetic for the delivery.

THERE ARE many causes for excessive loss of hair including nervousness. In this regard, if you're already "on the nervous side," I'm not sure that taking diet pills which usually cause nervousness is the best idea. Since you've lost all the weight you intend to, you should discontinue this practice entirely. If you diet in the future, it might be wise for you to avoid diet pills.

Some endocrine disorders including a low thyroid function can contribute to loss of hair and also oily scalp. The most frequent cause of loss of hair, however, is excessive beauty treatments that many women take, whether they are done at home or commercially. Anything which pulls the hair too tight or a hair style which pulls the hair tightly will aggravate the normal loss of hair. Repeated uses of tints and dyes at too frequent intervals also can damage the hair follicles and result in loss of hair. Harsh shampoos used too frequently can also cause difficulty rather than helping. As a general measure I usually recommend to people with falling hair to try to wash their hair about once a week with a mild shampoo, and to leave the hair loose and natural. Brush with a soft brush. If you continue to have a lot of falling hair ask your doctor about it. He may wish to do some tests to see how your endocrine glands are functioning.

Regarding your little girl, hair is constantly being lost and replaced. All animals do this. Some do it by seasons, and this is the typical shedding or molting season. In humans the follicles produce hair on a staggered time basis so that some new hair is always being formed, and some old hair is reaching its normal life span continuously. Otherwise, we would have a molting season too.

Hair does have a definite limit to the length it will grow. When it gets to this length it stops growing and tends to fall. I suspect that this is the case with your little girl.

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "All bidding rules are made to be broken at the right time."

Jim: "How about the rule that you should not use Blackwood when void of a suit?"

Oswald: "Here is a simple example of a time when a player does use Blackwood. Not in spite of having a void, but rather because of having a void."

Jim: "When South used Blackwood and then jumped to seven after North denied possession of an ace, there was the usual question: 'What would you have bid if North showed you an ace?'"

Oswald: "South did not reply immediately. He was a great believer in avoiding conversation when he had a hand to play. Then he ruffed the diamond lead and proceeded to run out the grand slam. Actually, he had some slight problems but they all disappeared when both opponents followed to his trump lead since he could now claim on a cross ruff."

Jim: "South still did not answer the question about what he would have bid if North had shown an ace, but we will answer for him. South would have undoubtedly settled for a small slam. Once North showed that his four-spade bid did not include the ace of diamonds, South was willing to gamble on the grand slam."

The Hollywood Scene

by Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Edward Dmytryk had directed 60 motion pictures with nary a nude — until now.

He directed such powerful hits as "The Young Lions," "Raintree County," "Hitler's Children," "The Caine Mutiny" and others.

Then along came "Bluebeard" with Richard Burton murdering seven wives, most of whom are seen in a state of dishabille if not totally in the buff.

Doubtless Dmytryk has seen naked women in his more than 60 years. But he had never been faced with the problem of photographing them for the screen. What to do?

"I had to have a long talk with myself," said the bearded director. "There was the matter of propriety. I wanted to handle the occasion with as much taste as I could. And, of course, there was consideration for the actresses."

TWO OF THE ladies in the film steadfastly refused to disrobe: Virna Lisi and Raquel Welch.

"Some of the others were so eager to get undressed I had to fight with them to stay dressed," Dmytryk said, grinning.

"But I did insist that the girls remain clothed throughout our rehearsals. When it came time for the nude scenes I cleared the set of all but about 10 members of the crew.

"The script girl, camera operator, makeup girl, hairdresser and a few others stayed around. The stage hands and the electricians up in the catwalks were asked to leave — amid much grumbling. But they left."

Director Dmytryk, of course, had to stick around.

Perhaps he should have walked away. "Bluebeard" has received almost universally deplorable reviews, the presence of Richard Burton in the title role notwithstanding.

DMYTRYK HAS AN answer for that too: "This is an historical fairy tale and the comedy is derived from how many different ways there are for a wife to drive her husband to the point of murdering her.

"I went for comedy in the picture because overt sex can't be taken too seriously. It's limiting. And sex on the screen actually eliminates romance. So we laugh at it in 'Bluebeard.'"

Despite the critics, "Bluebeard" — rated R — is doing brisk box office business, which is what its director had in mind from the beginning.

"If I had treated the subject seriously I'd have had a bomb," he said. "I expected the critics to rap us. The picture was made purely for entertainment."

"The 'want-to-see' quotient of this film is very high. You're in trouble when you make a serious picture and get bad reviews. But our purpose is a horror comedy and not intended to be anything else."

Dmytryk made his film in Hungary. The Hungarian reviews aren't in yet.

Whatever Happened To McCloskey?

Nixon's In-Party Challengers Fade Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was supposed to be a Republican version of the 1968 political year. As some critics saw it, Richard Nixon, bracketed and be-deviled from left and right, was supposed to give up like Lyndon Johnson did.

Not only didn't it happen, but Nixon emerged from the first six months of the 1972 political year stronger than he entered it. Firmly astride the center in American politics, the President came out of the Republican National Convention this week a heavy favorite for reelection.

What did happen was that the liberal and conservative Republican opposition to the President knocked itself out without laying a glove on Nixon. He didn't even have to campaign.

THE BIG DEAL last fall and winter was the candidacy of Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., as close to a Kennedy-image politician as the Republicans have. The former Marine combat officer challenged Nixon on the same issue and in the same place Sen. Eugene McCarthy used in 1968 to cut up President Johnson — Vietnam and the New Hampshire presidential primary.

McCarthy didn't beat Johnson and McCloskey never really expected to beat Nixon. A good, strong showing was the goal.

Enter the spoiler, in the person of Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio. Ashbrook is anything but a charismatic personality, but he comes on as sincere and honest. He is a deep-dyed conservative, without apologies and without table-pounding.

Ashbrook ruined McCloskey in New Hampshire. Nixon got 69.7 per cent of the vote, McCloskey got 19.7 per cent and Ashbrook got 10.9 per cent.

It might seem to be a stretch of the imagination to suggest that conservative Ashbrook took votes away from liberal McCloskey, but that might just be the case. Long after the 1968 New Hampshire test, deep research turned up the curious finding that McCarthy's 42 per cent share of the vote included a sizable element of voters who were even more hawkish about the war than Johnson, but voted with McCarthy's doves as the only way to register opposition to the President.

McCLOSKEY had set 20 per cent as his minimum showing to continue. He could have said 3 per cent was too small to quibble about, but the fact was that he was finished. The Californian's best showings after that were 14 per cent of the vote in Massachusetts and 11 per cent in Oregon — both dovish states.

He couldn't muster more than 11 per cent in any of the other seven primaries where his name appeared on the ballot, and he had to give up campaigning long before the primary season ended. He came out of it with one pledged delegate, 674 per cent short of bingo.

Ashbrook also went nowhere after New Hampshire getting a 9 per cent share of the Florida vote beating McCloskey, and no more than 6 per cent in the several other primaries where his name appeared.

An issue analysis of the Nixon opposition would show that McCloskey lost because Republican voters were satisfied with the President's Vietnamization and troop withdrawal program. Ashbrook's campaign fell apart in the glow of public satisfaction over Nixon's trip to China, a journey the Republican right viewed as heresy compounded.

SO NIXON was able to use the Presidency to protect his political position and to place himself in the soothing light of moderation between the extremes of McCloskey and Ashbrook. This position also gives him a head start on what already seems sure to be the GOP stance in the big race against Democrat George McGovern.

Up to convention time, Nixon hasn't had to attack, let alone answer, his opposition, within or without the GOP. That is a very comfortable position to be in, because small political embarrassments such as the Democratic headquarters bugging episode, Martha Mitchell's telephone calls, the Justice Department — ITT go-around, the Haynsworth-Carswell disasters, the Wally Hickel departure and others have remained dormant.

The Democrats, floundering around trying to choose their own national ticket and wasting the five-week campaign lead they gave themselves with a July nation convention, have helped keep Nixon's political profile low.

Assuming that McGovern and Sargent Shriver will be able to get a real campaign going against the Republicans by Labor Day, the picture may change. But considering the vitriol that has passed among the Democrats this year, it is hard to imagine how the opposition will be able to put Richard Nixon on the defensive in this campaign.

The Toy Gallery

No "Hands Off" Signs Here

by ELEANOR RIVES

Change "as happy as a child in a toy shop" to "as happy as a child in Shirley Tyre's toy shop" — and you really have a happy kid.

The Toy Gallery, 110 E. Lake St., Barrington, is one of the few places where mothers have no reason to say "Now don't touch anything" or to point to "hands off" signs. There aren't any.

"I'm pleased when children play with the toys within reach," said Mrs. Tyre. "How else would I know what appeals to them most, or what toys stand the most stress?"

In other respects, too, Shirley Tyre is anything but a typical shop proprietor. This is her first business venture. It happened almost by accident.

"LOOK," said Alice Grant, her former Mount Prospect neighbor, "I'm going to open a little tea room and gift shop in this old house in Barrington. The second floor is available. What would you like to do with it?"

Shirley, whose life and activities to this point had been child-oriented, thought immediately of toys. She began a whirl of research, starting with a trip to a toy festival in Branson, Mo. It was the first of many trips to handcrafting centers.

Raleigh House, a Barrington landmark dating from the turn of the century, opened for business March 24, 1972. Its atmosphere is pure Williamsburg — the colonial dress of the waitresses in the intimate little tea room; the hand-dipped candles, pottery and hand-crafted jewelry; the antiques, primitives and collectibles in the cellar antique shop; and on the second floor Shirley Tyre's collection of distinctive toys, most of them hand-crafted, a great many made from wood.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN artists and craftsmen have a way of appearing at the door of The Toy Gallery to show Shirley a handmade, quality toy they have created. Soon they are regular suppliers.

There's Bertha Crispe of Elk Grove whose mini-baby cradle baskets reverse to form a little girl's handbag. She's a whiz with a crochet hook and her flowered afghans are eye-appealing not only in doll buggies, but on real babies as well. Crocheted vests and a little yarn "worm" bookmark are also her stock in trade.

Dennis Pfister of Streamwood makes old-fashioned spinning tops of solid wood, modeled after tops of the 1800s. Richard E. Cook of Arlington Heights has some of his ship models on display for ordering. Kenn Howard's smooth-finished, solid maple or walnut cars and birds with simple, contemporary lines, are a delight to children. Kenn is a former Des Plaines resident.

ANOTHER DES PLAINES man, a retired grandpa, makes tall, sturdy wooden dollhouses that may later be used as cabinets. No two of Omar Sove's dollhouses are alike. His daughter-in-law, Sally Sove, does all the handpainted design. Together they turn out colorful plaques for children's rooms.

Granddaughter Christi Sove keeps Shirley Tyre supplied with hand-crocheted children's shrinks in designs resembling those she saw in Copenhagen.

Winsome child sketches on note paper and on wooden plaques are designed and supplied by Carolyn Glabe of Mount Prospect, once a member of Mrs. Tyre's Girl Scout troop.

Shirley's supplies are not limited to local people. She gathers unusual toy items from all over the United States.

MOTHERS AND children warm to the hand-whittled, hand-dressed grandma and grandpa dolls, made by a handy grandma in Missouri. A lady in Tennessee makes stuffed animals; calico animals wend their way to Barrington from an Ohio workshop. In a federally aided program, the "Possum Trot" women of Kentucky produce a whole line of mother animals with babies who snap on for nursing.

"Snappy Daddy Long Legs" are tall, skinny cloth dolls whose arms and legs may be snapped in various positions, making it possible for a child to have a dance partner.

A few toy items find their way to Barrington from other parts of the world — mostly wooden miniatures, wooden animals on wheels and wooden bag toys from East and West Germany and Italy.

"I try to find out what everyone is doing with wood — here and in other countries," said Shirley.

The line of children's books she carries — beautifully illustrated — is from England. "After all, nursery rhymes originated there."

SHIRLEY AND DELROY Tyre have lived in Mount Prospect for 15 years. Their activities have brought them in contact with children of many ages — in Little League, Midget Football, church youth activities and in Girl Scouts where Shirley was a leader for five years and then neighborhood chairman. Their first interest in handcrafted toys sprang from a troop project, the Toymaker Badge. The girls made sets of wooden blocks for pect, prefers to push the little wooden tractor and make happy "engine noises."

orphanages. Delroy sawed them out and supervised the sanding and painting.

The Tyres have two children, Linda, 21, and Michael, 17. Michael is getting a taste of the mechanics of running a business; Linda helps out with the book work; Dad — dear Dad — does just about everything. He makes display shelves, paints, makes wooden doll beds, refinishes antique play equipment, such as reed buggies, makes little kneeling-height tea tables and spends many a night dreaming up new ideas. All in addition to his regular job.

"He backs me up mentally, physically

... and financially," said Shirley.

RALEIGH HOUSE is about two blocks south of Lake-Cook Road, just east of Route 59. Inside its colonial doors may be found old-fashioned hospitality and respect for good craftsmanship, originality and quality. Those doors are open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, except Wednesdays and Sundays.

On the second floor is a woman who loves personal contact with people and will welcome you whether you are just browsing or looking for something special for that special child on your gift list.

A WHOLE LINE OF "mama" animals with babies that snap on for nursing inhabit The Toy Gallery in Barrington. They are handmade by the Kentucky "Possum Trot" women. Shirley Tyre of Mount Prospect has also found a wealth of craft talent in the north-west suburbs to stock her little toy shop.

KEEPING HOUSE is ever so much fun when you are two years old and your nose just reaches the top floor. Kelley Landers, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Brickwood of Arlington Heights, was enchanted with the handmade, cabinet type dollhouse in The Toy Gallery in Barrington.

A 'Family' Wedding Party

There were five children in the Curtis E. Kurtz family and five in the Preston C. Olsson family at the altar of St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, for the wedding of Pamela Kay Kurtz and Robert Preston Olsson.

All of the couple's brothers and sisters took part in the one o'clock Nuptial Mass on Aug. 12, besides three friends of the bride and groom.

Both families live in Arlington Heights. Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz at 204 E. Euclid and the Preston Olssons at 801 E. Jules.

The groom's sister Linda was maid of honor; the bride's brother Patrick was best man. Susan and Christy Olsson were bridesmaids along with Mrs. Arlene Pales of Des Plaines, and Karen Kurtz was junior bridesmaid.

ATTENDING THE bridegroom were two of his friends, David Lochell, Mount Prospect, and Richard Radtke, Elk Grove, along with David Olsson, the junior groomsman.

The ceremony took place by candlelight, with Jeffrey Kurtz as lector and Kevin Kurtz as server. The bridal pair exchanged vows before the Rev. Raymond P. Devereux.

Pam chose a white sata-peau gown for her wedding day. It featured a lace stand-up collar, long full sleeves with wide lace cuffs and a flowing skirt embroidered in Chantilly lace studded with seed pearls.

The bride's cathedral-length madonna veil was edged with the same Chantilly lace as her gown. She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her attendants were all gowned alike in yellow and orange floral chiffon over yellow taffeta. The dresses had long full sleeves and an orange cummerbund. Completing their ensembles the girls wore pale orange picture hats and carried colonial bouquets of white Elegance carnations and yellow daisy pompons tied with green ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Olsson

ORGANIST FOR the service was Scott Arkenburg of Arlington Heights, and soloist was Sandra Stavropoulos of Mount Prospect. Both were classmates of the bride.

A candlelight luncheon was served to 30 guests at Scandia House, Mount Prospect, afterwards. The newlyweds then honeymooned at a lodge in Wisconsin.

They will make their first home in Kalamazoo, Mich., where Bob is a senior at Western Michigan University. He is a graduate of St. Viator High School and Harper College. Pam graduated from Sacred Heart of Mary High in '72 and worked at the First Arlington National Bank.

Mt. Prospect Newlyweds Moving To Cedar Rapids

Pegi L. Dembinski and Scott J. Brill of Mount Prospect have been going together since they were 14. After a long courtship, they were married Aug. 5 in Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

Both attended Hersey High School and Scott will study accounting at Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, in fall. He has already spent a summer session there, but until going back to school full time he worked for Wieboldt's Distribution Center in Des Plaines.

Pegi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dembinski of 1502 Dogwood Lane, has been working for Illinois Bell Telephone Co. in Arlington Heights. She will begin working for Iowa Bell when the couple leave for Cedar Rapids late this month.

Scott's parents are the James A. Brills of 1711 Burning Bush Lane.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings in a late afternoon ceremony and then greeted 120 guests at a reception at the Camelot Restaurant in Des Plaines.

The bride wore a white organza gown with a shirred bodice, cap sleeves and a deep ruffle at the hem. A Juliet headpiece held her lace-edged mantilla veil, which flowed to a four-foot train.

The bride's bouquet was a large lily surrounded by lilies of the valley and baby's breath.

Her attendants were dressed alike in two-toned gowns featuring a white organza bodice and skirt in varied shades of pink. The girls carried baskets of mixed flowers in shades of pink.

THE MATRON OF HONOR, Mrs. Debi Bowen of Wheeling who is Pegi's sister,

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Brill

Darrell Trout of Mount Prospect was Scott's best man, while Tom Dembinski, brother of the bride, and Sonny Bowen, Wheeling, seated the wedding guests.

Pegi and Scott honeymooned for two weeks in California after the wedding weekend.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way to remove black stains on a hardwood floor caused by puppy urine?

—Alice Langhorne

Puppy urine isn't as strong as that deposited by an adult dog, so maybe you won't have to go through the whole routine. However, if you do, here it is: First try No. 1 steel wool and a good commercial floor cleaner, following the directions. If the dark spot remains, apply a hot oxalic-tartaric acid bleach solution (one tablespoonful of each in one cup boiling water). And use care — this is poison. Use a glass or enamel container to heat or reheat solution (which has to be hot to be effective). Leave on for 30 minutes to an hour; blot up. Rinse with a solution of two tablespoonsful baking soda to one quart warm water (which stops the action of the bleach). Blot up; rinse with clear water and clean cloth; then dry. Next day: Examine treated area. If some stain still remains, repeat the operation. If this doesn't work, area may have to be sanded or replaced.

Dear Dorothy: I have an ironstone plate that is cracked almost all the way across, though it is not yet broken. Is there any way this can be sealed?

—Ellen Hall

Epoxy glue will do the job. Wipe off the excess immediately. You can hold the crack together while the glue sets with floral caulking or the soft window seal. After the glue has set, just peel off the caulking.

Tip for new cooks: When you are having guests for dinner, warm the dinner plates if you are having hot food. Always put the soup dishes in the refrigerator if you are going to serve cold soup.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Shade Tricks

Variations of most window shade brackets are available for reverse-roll mounting. This "turning about" keeps the roller from showing roomside and is particularly important for laminated or duplex shades because it conceals the "street-side" color from the room. It is especially effective when no valance is used, since it gives the entire window treatment a clean-lined, contemporary look.

College Seniors Say Vows

Back at Oshkosh, Wis., ready to begin their senior year at the University of Wisconsin are newlyweds Jean and Robert Lochner.

The bride is the former Jean Palm, daughter of the John E. Palms of 2362 Big Oaks Road, Palatine. The groom's parents, the Jerome Lochners, live in Sauk City, Wis.

A college romance for Jean and Bob started in their freshman year. Jean is a '69 graduate of Fremd High School studying English at the university, and Bob is an accounting major.

They were married Aug. 5, in a one o'clock double ring service in the Presbyterian Church of Barrington. A reception for 165 guests followed in the Grande Ballroom of Howard Johnson's in Palatine.

JEAN CHOSE Gail Brueggeman of Milwaukee as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Arlene Koepl and Mary Hempel, both of Palatine; Sue Titus and Nancy Newberry, both of Kenosha, Wis., and Sandy Lochner, the groom's sister.

The girls all wore pinafore-style dresses in powder blue dotted swiss with long full sleeves. Large white picture hats and white baskets filled with blue and white daisies and baby's breath completed their ensembles.

The bride came down the aisle wearing a white organza over taffeta gown and a chapel-length veil attached to a Juliet cap of lace encrusted with pearls.

Her dress was banded with lace to define the Empire waist, the square neck, and the cuffs of the long full sleeves. The back waistline was dotted with lace and pearls as was the top of the gown's train.

For "something borrowed" Jean had the garter her mother wore on her own wedding day. The bride's bouquet was composed of white daisies, roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The groom's brother Dennis was his best man. Groomsmen included Steven Palm, the bride's brother; Jim and John Lochner, the groom's cousins; Phil Stuckey, Prairie Du Sac, Wis., and Gordon Spark, River Forest.

Jean and Bob spent ten days in Colorado before going to Oshkosh for the fall term.

Music Teacher Weds Army Captain

It was while Leah Jean Anderson was traveling through Europe in 1969 that she met the man she was to marry later. David Elliott Hunter was stationed in Germany with the U.S. Army, but the couple met in England while both were visiting there.

After each of them returned to the states, they eventually came to live and work in this area. Leah, daughter of the Leo Andersons of Newton, Kan., is a music teacher for Dist. 25 schools in Arlington Heights and has been living in Mount Prospect.

David has been working for the State of Illinois, Division of Water Resources Management, in Maywood and living in Des Plaines. Recently he was recalled to active duty as a captain in the army and will report to Ft. Knox, Ky., by Sept. 1, taking his bride along.

DAVID IS the son of John Hunter of Bicknell, Ind., and the late Mrs. Hunter.

The couple exchanged vows and rings by candlelight Aug. 19 in North Side Christian Church, Chicago. Afterwards, there was a reception in the church hall for 140 guests.

For the afternoon nuptials, the bride wore a nylon organza gown trimmed with bands of Venice lace. It was designed with a high neck, lantern sleeves and chapel train. A matching cap held the bride's short bouffant veil in place, and her bouquet was of yellow roses, white carnations and fuji mums, the latter tipped a misty blue.

Her bouquet matched the ensembles worn by her three attendants. They appeared in Empire styled dresses in a pale aqua and carried yellow and white daisies.

Madeline Sauerbier of Mount Prospect was maid of honor; Betty Jo Mulberry, the bride's roommate, and Suzanne Anderson of Arlington Heights were bridesmaids.

ALSO IN THE bridal party were Sheila Seville, 5, of Leland, Ill., as flower girl and Christopher Cazzell, 4, of Bloomington, Ind., ring bearer. The young flower girl was dressed as a miniature of the other attendants.

Walter Marczak of Connorsville, Ind., was David's best man, while Willard Cazzell, Bloomington, Ind., and Tommy Mosely, Silver Springs, Md., were groomsmen. The bride's brother Jeffrey Anderson of West Point, N. Y., ushered.

The newlyweds spent a week's honeymoon in the Smoky Mountains before getting ready to leave for Ft. Knox.

Leah is a graduate of Wichita State University and has a master's in music education from the University of Illinois. Her husband is an engineering graduate of Purdue University.

Fashion

by Genie

If you've done any fall window shopping at all yet, one big fashion trend must certainly have been noticeable. Plaids are running wild in all ready-to-wear, for both men and women.

The fashion industry considers the trend the most important single one for the new season.

Plaids are being shown in many variations. There are the traditional clan plaids, big horse-blanket blocks of colors and even pastel plaids, somewhat subtler in appearance.

Even many floral prints have plaid backgrounds. And watch for the liberal mixing of plaids with stripes and checks.

PLAIDS ARE ABUNDANT in coats for fall, sportswear, of course, and evening wear too. For women, plaid blazers are popularly being teamed with long skirts for evening wear. Another good look for night is a velveteen blazer matched up with an ankle length kilt. Short plaid skirts are being sold to the youth, most of them designed in fashionable wide box pleats.

Hmm . . . I kinda remember wearing the same thing 15 years ago.

American designer Jim Baldwin showed big plaid coats worn over solid-color dresses in his new collection.

His "Anything Coat" is a full wrap style in multi-toned plaid worn over a simple gray wool dress. It is the kind of thing he feels that a woman could "live in" for the next five years. The coat can actually be worn over anything from a sweater and pants ensemble to a velvet evening dress.

Plaids are being carried through as a theme from top to toe and that includes shoes too.

However, the American Footwear Institute (AFI) in its style forecast put the greatest amount of emphasis on height . . . and I mean more of it.

THE SOLE is becoming the focal point of shoe fashion with heels both broader and taller.

Some women's shoes are mounted on a two-inch platform that pushes the heel to four inches.

Men's platforms feature heights up to three and one half inches. However those are more for the avant garde dresser. Most masculine heights are much more conservative.

Other footnotes include a push for the clog which AFI said just possibly could be the sports shoe of 1972. First having been introduced from northern Europe several seasons back, clogs are now firmly entrenched in both men's and women's shoe lines.

Are you pining for the traditional plain pump? This is your season approaching. Get ready to greet its return for the plain but still sophisticated pump will be worn with everything from city suits to dinner clothes.

SANDALS WILL continue to swing right into fall. Many of them are featuring a sling back and more covered-up front.

The line of men's footwear is also including a waffle-soled hiking boot in either a rough finish or waxed leather.

The stylish male is tucking his jeans into the streamlined motorcycle boots that reach up to the knee in smooth black leather buckled in brass as many as seven times up the side.

She Wants A New Master

Technology, education and the Women's Liberation Movement have all been working — though not necessarily together — to make me a free woman.

Technology has unchained me from the washboard and clothesline and dishpan and countless other drudgeries by introducing mechanized substitutes. Education has made me aware that there are other things in life besides housework — books, art, music — and to pursue these, I had better take advantage of the household wonders of technology. Women's Lib has made it quite clear that if I am educated enough to know I need all these mechanical marvels, the least I can do is find someone else to turn them on.

So therefore I am free, right? Wrong. I am, and probably always will be, a slave to appliances. It has suddenly become very clear to me that I do not own them. They own me.

THIS REALIZATION came last week when our family was taking off for a weekend trip. We had just hit the city limits when I had the most uneasy feeling.

"Did anyone unplug the coffeepot?" I asked.

Everyone was sure I had, but I was sure I hadn't, so we turned back. The pot was unplugged.

The whole family created such a flap over this time-losing incident that I was made to realize that I had been doing this for years. Unhooked irons, electric frying pans, turned off ovens and the like have haunted me often in the middle of the night, and usually when I left the house unattended.

I suppose I come by this naturally. Once when we were living in California, my mother came out to visit. As soon as she got off the plane, she brushed past my startled husband who had come to meet her, shouting, "The dryer! The dryer; I left the dryer on!"

A PHONE CALL and a parking ticket later, Mother explained to my husband that the timer was broken on her dryer, and she was afraid no one would remember to turn it off. She had worried about it for 3000 air miles.

Cats Should Be Licensed

Nothing is cuter than a family of young kittens, frolicking around a mother cat in a roly-poly flood of exuberance

Kittens, however, grow into cats — a sad experience for many animal fanciers. They lose their childhood innocence and assume a stance of rugged independence, totally unlike their cousin, the dog.

Have you ever tried to get a cat to do precisely what you want him or her to do? It's almost impossible.

Cats set their own behavioral standards; mankind to them is a necessary nuisance that provides food, water, a kitty litter box and midwifing when necessary (although cats would rather do it themselves, thank you).

With great reluctance, however, the Herald suggests another intrusion into the world of catdom. Put simply, cats — just like dogs — should be licensed.

In the last week the Herald reported that a stray cat had scratched a woman in Schaumburg and, unless the stray cat could be found, the woman would have to undergo a series of painful rabies shots.

The missing cat, however, may not have been a homeless cat. He or she may be one of the thousands of cats which roam around neighborhoods looking for small and careless birds, chipmunks and, in most cases, other cats with whom to mate or fight

In the mysterious quests for food and fun that cats get involved in, too often some human peace-maker gets scratched or bitten. And, if you've ever heard a cat fight at 3 a.m., you're aware that cats have the noise potential similar to that of a subway train roaring through a tunnel.

Several communities, in fact, have toyed with the idea of licensing cats. Schaumburg officials are discussing a cat control ordinance and may make rabies inoculations mandatory for all village cats

There's a question, though, about whether municipalities have the right to license cats. Several years ago Mount Prospect and Rolling Meadows tried to pass an ordinance regulating cats. They were told by attorneys that state law prohibited ordinances controlling free-running cats. The new Illinois Constitution, however, may clarify the matter.

At any rate, any attempt to license cats probably faces a legal test. We would hope some minimal controls would be permitted under the new constitution.

If cats are, indeed, licensed, we expect the initial discomfort of a rabies shot or a collar with a tag on it will be overcome quickly as a minor, trivial nuisance. The fact is, we haven't seen anything yet which really, deep down inside, fazes a cat.

Cosmetic Cover-Up

The multibillion dollar cosmetic industry is being prodded to consider the consumer more and their profits a little less that previously.

One nudge in this direction was the request of President Nixon's consumer adviser, Mrs. Virginia Knauer, that cosmetic firms provide ingredient information that is readable and easily understandable to buyers.

Behind the velvet-gloved urging is the knowledge that cosmetics can contain ingredients that can be irritating and, in extremely rare cases, fatal to the allergic.

It would seem logical in a time in which people of all ages show concern about their total environment that cosmetic manufacturers would rush unhesitatingly to comply. Those who do not may find themselves faced with a barrage of chemical test reports and embarrassing questions before a Congressional committee.

However, the burden of pressing such an action should not rest with a few appointed or elected officials. Few manufacturers would deny that pressure from the consumer en masse usually gets prompter action than a long, drawn out governmental inquiry. After all, it is the consumer who buys the product and keeps a company in business.

Unnumbered Mosquitoes

A special dispatch to the New York Times warns that "in the next three weeks, millions of mosquitoes — more than double the normal amount — will be hatched in New Jersey's marshes and wetlands . . ."

The normal amount of mosquitoes, evidently, is half-millions.

Tom Wellman's Column

Looking Back At The Convention

Somehow, the 1972 GOP convention in Miami Beach comes down to a picture in one of the metropolitan papers of Charles Grupp Jr. of Chicago Heights wearing a beret.

The beret has the letter "I" emblazoned on it, and according to the caption, Grupp isn't on an ego trip. Instead, the letter stands for the University of Illinois (which seems to make some sort of reasonable sense, one supposes).

Why, might you ask, does Grupp's picture appear? Well, Charles Grupp Jr. is a Republican minority member of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, so he's probably attending the convention as either an alternate or a delegate.

Grupp is a quiet member of the Cook County board — so quiet that in the four months last summer and fall, Grupp perhaps opened his mouth two or three times, beyond routinely seconding a motion.

He was the GOP's version of Ruby Ryan or William Harvey — commissioners who may have been valuable behind the scenes but had little to say when the public is present.

The difference between Miami Beach last week and six weeks ago was that the GOP drew hundreds, thousands of solid, silent citizens such as Grupp — while the Democrats drew the colorful the not-so-silent types, the persons who resist the Silent Majority label which the GOP tossed around.

Indeed, it is first a style difference, and behind it is the fact the Democrats have at least the reputation for throwing better parties and picnics than the Republicans.

Indeed, the GOP's gathering was a fitting festival for the dog days of August. August is the time when everyone leaves town, primarily to get away from it, to relax and wallow in torpor.

It is not the time for confusion and chaos, the kind featured four years ago at the Democratic Convention. In drug circles the GOP conclave was a "downer," a tranquilizer to take away the bad, noisy effects of the world around us.

One commentator noted that, while the Democrats hung pictures of their past, dead heroes, Nixon's photo was the only one to flash before viewers eyes at the GOP gathering.

Perhaps such a step is desirable, to allow concentration on the man in order to fuel up the party's workers for the

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

'Don't Extend Butchers' Hours'

In rebuttal to M. Grissomer's Fence Post letter concerning butcher's convenience to consumers, may I add that this is also my first attempt at writing to a newspaper. Missing the editorial due to vacation but reading the Arlington Heights lady's letter, my reaction stirred immediately, wishing people would spend more time to research before voicing opinions.

May I now have the privilege to defend the union's stand:

—Nine hours is sufficient time to shop. Presuming eight hours are sleep, that leaves seven hours extra in a day. If our social butterflies of suburbia can't shop in nine hours how could four more hours (9 to 10 store hours) add to their convenience.

—How much more meat can you eat per day? Perhaps more jobs, but for whom? Certainly not a family man. A butcher has four classes to his profession. A wrapper, apprentice, journeyman and a head meat cutter. Presuming meat is sold 12 or 13 hours a day, a man would have to go on a six hour a day work shift. No meat cutter would work overtime for that length of time due to the temperature meat is handled or the vigorous work of lifting hinds of beef.

At six hours a day a wrapper receives $16.30, an apprentice $25.20, a journeyman $32.40 and a head meat cutter $35.52. (These figures are based on 2-1/2 years experience.) It takes five years to become a journeyman. A head meat cutter perhaps his whole life. On a five-day, six-hour work scale a journeyman would earn $162.00 per week. Deduct taxes from a family man earning $162.00 per week or an apprentice earning $126.00 a week how many men would choose butchering as a profession? May I add that it does take skill in carving a hind of beef. Now do you realize that a store hiring more men would have to pay two butchers $64.80 a day instead of $43.20 or even an apprentice and butcher $57.60 instead of $43.20. Taking your lower figure that still stands as an extra expense to your market of $86.40 a week per man which would mean that meat prices would rise more.

—If you prefer a supermarket with wrapper meat loaded with preservatives that are stored in a refrigerator until it is sold or freshly cut meat — heaven forbid what the busy consumer eats. Wait in line for one-half hour with purchases un-refrigerated to check out and later wonder why your meat spoiled or tasted odd. Have you observed all butcher wives usually are good cooks? Could it be the meat they cook is not pre-packaged?

May I also add that Mrs. Social Life either comes in at 9 a.m. sharp and demands to see a show case filled with the day's fresh cut of meat or shows up at 6 p.m. and demands service cause she walked in the store at 5:59 p.m.

Stop to think how many times once your meat is packaged it is restored in different refrigerators. Ask your supermarkets to allow you to test the different temperatures of the refrigerators.

Perhaps women are right and need more conveniences. Personally I prefer shopping in the afternoon, cooking a dinner ner like grandma used to make for my hard-working husband. I also prefer spending my evenings at home observing my husband's appreciative face instead of trotting to a supermarket at 8 p.m. leaving the kids at home for him to watch and put to bed.

I say Hurrah for the Union. I hope they continue to fight Big Business and their tea-totling wives and once again put the little guy back in business and get back to some good ole fashion eating habits of nourishing food. For 16 years I found time to shop and play.

Youth Scolds Candidate McGovern

George McGovern is a definite NO. Since his nomination I would like to point out the following observations. The Eagleton affair clearly shows the inability of Mr. M. to screen nominees, even his own running mate. How can we let a man into the White House who we know is incapable of filling posts with honorable individuals? Another point is what right does Mr. M. have to negotiate with the North Vietnamese on a "peace settlement" before he is even elected? Mr. M. is obviously power happy. Just what we need is another power-happy Democrat in the White House. He is mingling in the affairs of the President by sending Mr. Salinger to Paris. Mr. M. today said that there would be no more talks between the two, that's like closing the barn door after the horses are out. At the Illinois State Fair Mr. M. told farmers he would raise price supports, but failed to say where he would get the money and that Congress would act in his favor. Mr. M's defense cutbacks are absurd. This would put us a distant second in the world and make us an easy target for attack.

Oh, and Sargent Shriver. A Senate page has more political experience than he. Mr. M. is constantly changing his views. Every week he comes out with different defense cut amounts. He shifts left and right to gain support. He is such a hopeless case his own friends show it. It took many tries to find a second vice-presidential running mate. Sargent Shriver is the first contact who didn't have something to lose. Who would you choose, a man who shifts ground faster than you can say Ernie Banks, or a man who stands behind what he says? Nixon-Agnew in '72.

Reader Praises Our American Freedoms

I love our freedom that was not just given us, but fought and died for, by not just fathers, sons, husbands but also our women.

Many wars have passed and many shall come, but our free democracy we shall always have, as this many true Americans have died for. They not only gave their lives to protect their loved ones, but also this land of ours, with its beautiful mountains and shores.

Having this freedom, we can feel proud and hold our heads high and walk freely down our streets, to our church, to worship our God. I use this word "our" many times because this freedom does not belong to any one of us, but to each of us, one and all. We are united together in a strong bond.

This band allows us to write words such as I have written and binds us together, in our love for these beautiful

Chain Stores Hit

In answer to Mrs. Grissomer's letter: What's wrong with having Ma and Pa grocery stores and independent butcher shops? Why should chain stores have a monopoly on the above? A man who has invested his earnings has a right to make a living.

I for one like to be treated as an individual when I shop and the independent stores do just that.

Lady, I can tell you never had to put in hours in a retail store. Try it some time. I am not in retail business.

Business Today

by JOSEPH A. REAVES

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — with more than 50 superports already being planned, built or operating around the world, Atlantic and Gulf Coast states are bidding to have the first in the United States.

A superport, basically, is a man-made structure in deep enough water — at least 100 feet — to accommodate the supertankers being used by many of the world's trading companies today.

No port along the Gulf or Eastern coasts of the United States is accessible to ships that have that much draft and are as long as the Empire State Building. Yet, maritime experts agree ships this size and larger will handle virtually all major world oil trade in 10 years.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the agency responsible for granting a permit to construct any superport, has said it would recommend several superport sites by June 30, 1973.

THE FEDERAL government has indicated it would support only one Gulf of Mexico superport for now. At least two states — Texas and Louisiana — are trying to get it. Alabama also has a chance.

Until recently, Texas was considered the front runner in the race. Then Louisiana took the initiative. On Feb. 16, 1972, Gov. Edwin W. Edwards appointed a 46-member "Superport Task Force" to promote the state's bid. And on Aug. 1 the Louisiana Legislature replaced it with a nine-member committee "influencing any decision the Corps might make."

Louisiana thus was the first state to create a superport authority. Officials also feel their state has the edge in natural resources.

"Louisiana's advantages are obvious,"

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Selectivity," rather than "any port in a storm," is always a big part of the Wall Street game, and in uncertain market weather it becomes all the more important," Indicator Digest says. During a troubled market, stocks must have some superior attributes to merit commitment of funds. The company says that low risk is perhaps the "primary factor," adding that "earnings should be steady — and preferably growing." It also says that "good dividend provides a measure of support, should the market deteriorate."

Selective buying among cyclical stocks has marked the market's rise from mid-July lows, TPO Inc. says. "Some cyclical with relatively low price-earnings ratios and blue chips in the same category have received most of the attention." It suggests that "distribution appears to have finally hit the glamors," which had been in favor during the past two years.

Wright Investment Service says the stock market finally is moving up. "The stock market seems finally to have made up its mind that economic prosperity has rounded the corner and that 'McGovernmentism' is a threat to investors and their heirs," Wright adds.

The Bache Technical Service believes any hesitation in the Dow's upward movement signals a good moment to buy stock. Traders should watch for the public's return to the stock market and in the meantime, remain on the selective side on buying. The market is not yet vulnerable to any long-lived corrections, Bache says.

Is Your Operation Really Necessary?

by CARLTON SMITH

There is one, simple, effective way to save money on medical bills. It's similar to the way you save money on an opera hat. If you don't need one, don't buy one.

This principle, applied to surgery, could save Americans the cost of at least two million operations a year, according to Herbert S. Denenberg, Pennsylvania's insurance commissioner. Estimates on the number of unnecessary operations performed range as high as three to four million, he says, citing studies and writings by physicians and surgeons.

Denenberg, one of the country's fiercest protectors of the consumer's pocketbook, is distributing to Pennsylvania residents a "Shopper's Guide to Surgery" that carries his byline. It lists 14 rules as "simple and proven ways of knowing whether proposed surgery is needed or not," and for getting high quality care, if it is needed.

MOST DOCTORS, HE points out, are "honest and humane enough" not to sell patients on unneeded surgery. But "studies indicate some 15,000 licensed doctors in the United States are unfit to practice medicine." To assume that you really need an operation simply because some surgeon prescribes it, therefore, is "placing undue trust in America's medical system." Boiling down Denenberg's 14 rules:

- Don't go, for medical treatment, directly to a surgeon — who likely has a natural prejudice in favor of surgery. Start with your family physician or internist, who will arrange for you to see a surgeon if he thinks it's necessary.

- Inquire whether your surgeon is board-certified as a specialist in surgery, and a fellow of the American College of Surgeons or equivalent osteopathic society. Find out from the local medical society, or consult the "Directory of Medical Specialists" in your library. If he doesn't have these credentials, check out his competence very carefully.

- Always get an independent opinion from another surgeon — even if your family doctor and proposed surgeon agree that an operation is needed. Studies show, says Denenberg, that consultations result in 20 to 60 per cent fewer operations.

- Make sure any surgery is performed in an accredited hospital — one which meets the standards of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. There are about 5,400 accredited hospitals in the country — and some 1,600 that don't meet J.C.A.H. standards.

- Don't "push" for surgery, yourself;

if you do, you'll certainly find some doctor who's willing to do the possibly unnecessary operation. Make sure you get a thorough discussion of the alternatives to surgery, the benefits of surgery and its possible risks and complications.

- Frankly discuss fees — all fees involved, not just the surgeon's. Doctors aren't reluctant to do this. In fact, professional ethics require open understandings with patients about fees.

THE DENENBERG "Shopper's Guide" makes the point several times that surgeons are happiest when operating. As with people who, for example, like to tinker with cars, they have a natural inclination to tinker with your innards in the belief that it will improve things — even though your machinery may be running well enough to let well enough alone.

Let at least a couple of doctors separately convince you that you need surgery before you agree to hop on the table. And be especially hard to convince when it's one of the three operations that are most often needlessly performed: hysterectomies, hemorrhoidectomies and tonsillectomies.

Arlington, Ohio Battle For Legion Crown

by JIM COOK

RICHMOND, IND. — Arlington Heights took five hours of batting practice Saturday — two before its game against host post Richmond and three during the game.

Eighteen runs plus 21 hits equalled a smashing 18-6 triumph for the Illinois state American Legion champs who advanced into the final here of the Great Lakes Regional Tournament against unbeaten Findlay, Ohio Sunday night.

It's not that head coach Lloyd Meyer's club was in a slump. It powered eight runs across against Findlay in Friday night's moonlight clash. It's just that Ohio tallied 16 runs, dropping Arlington into a position of no return with one loss in the double elimination playoffs.

Heights rebounded emphatically from the disheartening clobbering Friday with no less than 15 different players contributing to Richmond's humiliation and elimination less than 24 hours later.

While scoring in every frame but the sixth, 11 Arlington batters took turns dealing out the 21 base hits and 18 runs. The united effort paved the cakewalk for pitcher Dwaine Nelson, who was making only his second start of the year for the local legionnaires. His first was a masterful two-hit route-going verdict over Des Plaines.

Dwaine shared his hurling services for both the Midlothian White Sox and Arlington and was pressed into emergency duty immediately following the Sox's extinction in Wichita, Kans.

"I flew in at about two this afternoon," Dwaine said, without showing visible signs of fatigue. "I didn't have any sleep but I was ready."

Nelson didn't need much what with the support his teammates provided, but he showed plenty anyway. He fired five strong innings before being touched for four Richmond consolation runs in the late stages of the game. Dwaine didn't issue a pass through his eight-inning stint while fanning three.

Ed Carpenter, opping up in relief, was also solved for a pair of runs, but by then the contest was safely in the hands of the substitutes and the decision all but tucked away in the win column.

Arlington's awesome offensive attack was spearheaded by super shortstop Jim Locascio who rapped four hits in six trips, punch-hitter Tony Fricano and steady Bob Harth, who scattered three apiece, and power-hitting Mark Leonhard was spearheaded by super shortstop Jim homer over the fence in left field.

"It felt good when I hit it," the burly centerfielder remembered in describing the belt-high fast ball. "I saw it hit the top of the fence and thought it would be at least a double, but then I saw the umpire waving the home run sign and watched our guys coming out of the dug-out to meet me."

The blast was reported to be the first in that specific area of spacious Municipal Stadium in over two years and only the fifth round-tripper in the last seven.

Leonhard's explosion came with both Harth and Bert Newman aboard in the seventh and cushioned Arlington's already-insurmountable lead to yawning 10-2 status.

The winners jumped on the first of five Richmond throwers for single runs in each of the initial three innings. Locascio, Newman, and Fricano each drove in a tally with singles as Heights registered two hits per frame.

The scoring pattern jumped to a two-run output over the fourth and fifth with Harth, Fricano, Dave Zare, and Locascio again supplying the key blows. After the scoreless sixth, Leonhard personally autographed three more on the scoreboard in the seventh.

Nelson got into the act in the eighth with a run-producing sacrifice fly before a seven-run barrage in the ninth put Richmond permanently to sleep in the seven-team tourney, despite a fine 34-21 record.

In a 12-man parade to the plate, Arlington's final-frame cruncher was derived primarily from singles by Jim Prandini, Locascio, Ken Kallberg, and Dan Cunningham, doubles by Zare and Pat Broderick and a pair of walks to get-on-base specialist Harth.

It might have done Arlington well to save some of its run production for its regional championship match with Ohio. Having been upended by its eastern neighbors once already, Heights is now required to take two straight decisions to gain a national berth in Memphis, Tenn. later this week.

Maintaining the incredible .447 team batting average unveiled against Richmond would almost insure a trip to that guitar-pickers paradise.

Zare, Locascio Draw Plaudits In Tourney Play

by PAUL LOGAN

RICHMOND, IND. — When the most valuable player is named here at the end of the Indian-hosted Great Lakes Regional Tournament, it might not be Jim Locascio or Dave Zare.

Pitching performances and batting averages tend to draw voters' attention more, but the left side of the Arlington Heights infield has turned in MVP performances through Saturday's play.

Third baseman Zare has accounted for four extra base hits, six runs-batted-in (both team highs), while shortstop Locascio has dazzled defensively with clutch play after clutch play.

Locascio showed the scouts that he could also handle a bat Saturday against host post Richmond. His 4-for-6 showing led the Heights hitting attack as it crushed the hosts, 18-6.

"It was cruddy pitching," said the modest former Arlington High School player. "I'm not that proud of it."

Be that as it may, it helped shake Locascio's batting slump that began with the state tournament and grew to a 1-for-23 figure until his barrage.

"During the regular season I was hitting better than I was fielding," said Locascio, recalling his .346 average before the slump. "I wasn't charging enough."

Since the coaching of Lloyd Meyer and assistant Mark Newman corrected that flaw, this 6-foot-1, 187-pounder has been making like another Don Kessinger. Besides showing the leadership on the field, Locascio's play has also been tops in the elite seven-team field.

Southern Illinois University saw his potential ("They say I have major league arm") and signed him to a scholarship. Baseball potential was also recognized in the man on his right — Zare — by Northern Illinois University.

"I'm hitting for a higher average," said Zare, of his recent surge. The former Hersey High School star hit .260 before the regional and .294 through four games here. That figure becomes more impressive when you consider that four of his five hits have been of the extra base variety.

"It seems like the whole year long I've been getting my hits with guys on base," said the 6-foot-1, 195-pound extrovert. He shared the RBI title coming into the regional with Locascio and has since taken over the leadership.

His present extra base tear has come within one homer of equalling his output for the first 42 games of the season (two homers, one triple and two doubles).

Formerly a football tight end ("It wasn't fun for me. I think sports should be fun."), Zare has lulled many a team into thinking he was no threat on the bases because of his size. His 19 thefts, ranking second on the club, proved differently.

Zare is one of a handful of Heights players who can run on his own. Earlier in the year he stole second on a very close play. An argument ensued and he sneaked to third. That's the day he was allowed to run at will.

"I've got to go off the pitcher," said Zare, a runner with average speed but plenty of baseball savvy. "I anticipate on the pitcher."

During the interview, Zare wore his hat like baseball clowns do — first with the brim coming down over his left ear and then backwards like a catcher. When asked if his smiling, talkative nature left him in the role of team clown, he said, "I try but they don't listen to me."

Meyer disagrees.

"He keeps the guys loose," said the head coach.

You need both types of team leaders to help get a team this far.

NEAR MISS. Arlington's Bert Newman just makes it back to first on an attempted pickoff play by Kokomo pitcher Tom Underwood in the opening round of the Indiana Regional Tournament. Newman went on to steal three bases and his personal total to 45 straight without being thrown out as Heights romped to a 9-4 win. Newman's streak was stopped the next game when he was nailed at third base. (Photo by Jim Cook)

Defense, Pitching Collapse

Heights Tries To Forget First Battle With Findlay

Special To Paddock Publications

RICHMOND, IND. — When a team is on the short end of a 16-8 baseball game, the sooner it is forgotten the better.

Arlington Heights found itself buried in this footballish score Friday night when its vaunted defense suffered an unexpected collapse.

Eight errors, seven walks, a hit batsman and 11 hits allowed Findlay, Ohio to manhandle the Illinois state champs in the Indiana-hosted Great Lakes Regional Tournament.

"We looked and played poorly," said head coach Lloyd Meyer. "It brought us down a bit and it left us a little looser, believe it or not."

Heights had cruised to a pair of impressive wins over Kokomo, Ind. and Trenton, Mich., and appeared headed for a tourney sweep. It had happened the last time Meyer was in the regional in 1965.

Holding a 7-4 lead heading into the bottom of the fifth, Arlington gave up a pair of four-run innings to seal its fate.

"I think we needed that," added Dave Zare, the hitting star of the game despite the loss. The husky third baseman singled in one and doubled in three more to give his team the short-lived lead. He had one-half of the team's hits.

Although not trying to put the blame somewhere else, Meyer said that the lights gave some of his players problems. It was the first time in over a month that the team had played under lights.

HOLE IN THE GLOVE? The ball escapes the mitt (near first basemen's shoulder) to give Arlington's Dave Zare new life during a game with Kokomo last week in the Indiana Regional Tournament. Part 2: Inside Harness Racing

'No One Has All The Information'

(Editor's Note: Mike Blake now lives under an assumed name. His gambling problem forced him to move away from the Midwest city in which he had lived most of his adult life. That is true. So are the facts and incidents as related in the following two-part series. However, all the names have been fictionalized to protect Mr. Blake, who fears reprisals.)

(Last of Two Parts.)

by MIKE BLACKIE

As Told to IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — (NEA) — When do harness drivers fix races? Not always in dark corners of stables, or in smoke-filled back rooms. Often races are fixed right out where thousands of people can see them.

While waiting for a signal from a driver, I would sit up in the stands waiting for the deal to be arranged. Drivers would talk over a race on the track in the warm-up, driving side by side. The only people in the stands who could tell what was being said were lip-readers with high-powered binoculars and X-ray vision. Or the ones who got the signals.

Two drivers might box out a favorite to let another guy win. Sometimes a driver would "pull" his horse — that is, not allow him to run his best. Once, some dummy was winning the race and suddenly remembered near the finish line what he was doing. He pulled the reins with his left hand while whipping with the right. He had lost his head. The horse jumped. After the race the driver explained that a rabbit had run in front of the horse. Rabbit's name must've been Harvey.

Once, the horse I owned, High Step, thought he was a bird. At the time, he had a quarter-crack — a hoof infection. He could hardly walk, which wasn't unusual for him, but now he walked with pain. That afternoon my driver-trainer, Steve Fillmore, told me to bet him big. "You got alligator shoes? Give them to the ticket seller, too," he told me. But he told me not to bet to win, but for place and show. Yes, sir! I bet big, something was up.

The horse was running near last almost the whole race. When the pack turned toward the stretch, High Step was still way back. I was about to panic. That's when High Step sprouted wings. He came hard on the outside and finished second. After the race I went back-side (the stable area) to thank Fillmore for the tip. He told me he had drugged the horse. He said he could have won the race by five lengths but didn't want to finish first. Winners were given post-race saliva tests.

Doping horses is not too common any more. Deals between drivers make it an unnecessary risk. Now, in Illinois and in several other states, the winner plus two or three others in every race are given post-race tests. Ohio and New York are now giving pre-race urinalysis to all horses. So why blow up a safe when you have the combination?

All you need is a couple of friendly drivers who owe you a favor, or who will expect a favor sometime. One hoof washes the other is the saying.

In most races, only two or three horses are usually true contenders in a field of eight or nine. This is especially so in small-purse races, the ones from $1,500 to about $4,000. Two or three other horses may not have reached their peak and are just out for the exercise. The rest are no-accounts and horses so lame they need to be pulled by a tow truck. I've seen horses come in 20 lengths behind the next-to-next-to-last horse.

Drivers of second-rate horses often have as much to do with the winning of a harness race as the best horses. They can go head-to-head early with the "unfriendly" contender in order to burn him out. A harness horse can only go full steam for about a quarter of the mile race. If that big quarter is at the start, then the horse falls to the back of the pack, leaving him with his tongue dragging.

Another common trick is called "parking" a horse, forcing a horse to run on the outside, away from the rail. Sometimes he has to run three wide. This makes a horse run maybe an extra quarter of a mile. If he can win then, then he's a Superhorse. Few are.

I won thousands of dollars in the six months I owned High Step, from betting on this inside information. You ask, why didn't I become a millionaire? Many reasons.

No one has all the information. And there are so many uncontrollables. You can't control things like a horse tripping, a horse breaking gait, a wheel rolling off a sulky, a tipster underestimating a horse, or a dishonest driver lying to you. My driver once told me he had bought out a driver in a race, then my driver changed the plans at the last minute without telling me. There is not always honor among thieves. A million things can go wrong.

In most cases, all a professional gambler can hope for at a harness track is simply more information than the average bettor. The fans are betting the field, the insider is betting two or three horses. Sometimes one. The fans are betting from charts, the insider is betting from the horse's mouth. Sometimes the guy off the street wins despite himself. Sometimes the insiders lose.

A gambler with a definite tip can't bet too much on one race. If he goes to a window with big dough he might single-handedly bring the price suspiciously down too far — at least it was that way when the handle for a race was $50,000 or less. It's getting harder to lay off big bets with track bookies because track officials have been cleaning that up.

And off-track bookies don't handle the trotters much. They don't trust 'em. Smart boys.

BANKING ON THE TEXAS WEDGE

THE NEXT TIME A STEEP BANK PRESENTS YOU WITH A DIFFICULT CHIPPING SITUATION, DON'T OVERLOOK THE POSSIBILITY OF USING YOUR PUTTER.

IT CAN BE QUITE EFFECTIVE WHEN THE PIN LIES JUST OVER THE TOP NEAR THE EDGE OF THE GREEN OR WHEN THE LIE IS RATHER BAD. NEVER TRY TO PUTT, HOWEVER, UNLESS THE BANK IS RELATIVELY SMOOTH.

THIS IS A PERCENTAGE SHOT. PLAYING IT A LITTLE HARDER THAN A NORMAL UPHILL PUTT, IT WILL OFTEN GET YOU CLOSER TO THE HOLE THAN ANY KIND OF CHIP.

Schwimley, Soderdahl Get Low Nets

Jerry Schwimley and Bob Soderdahl struck the greens often enough to gain low net honors in Union Oil Men's Golf League play at Palatine Hills this past week. Soderdahl shot five pars with his 29 net and Schwimley picked off several for a 31 net.

Dennis Harrod, fresh off a winning 18 holes in the Paddock Tourney, had low gross winnings Monday with a 40 while John Irwin picked up low gross 39 Tuesday night. Each got one bird.

Three point winners in last week's play were Fred Siefker, Bob Evans, Walt Krueger, Schwimley, Wendell Prunty, Jim Culpepper, Charlie Ellis, Earl Leggett, Soderdahl, Randy Johnson and Joe Courtney.

Soderdahl led the par shooters Tuesday night with five; Irwin got four, with Lee LeClaire, Art Jorgensen and Earl Leggett following with three each.

Team 7, Culpepper, Glen Herndon, Chuck Lennon and Bob Parker, lead the Monday night play with 70 points, a lead they should hold to be league winners.

Team 6 has opened a large hole as front leaders in the Tuesday night play with Gene LeClaire, Harry Sherman, Bob Goehring and George Landro producing a commanding lead of 10 points.

Number 1 bracket leaders, Culpepper with 23 points and Joe Haughey with 22-1/2, should hold their own. Number 2 bracket leaders Russ Brown, 18, and Harry Sherman, will have to continue their pace to hold on, while Number 3 bracket leaders, Dave May, 19, and Don Wickert, should hang on to be winners. Bracket 4, Frank Castleberry and Bob Wagner with 13-1/3 points will have to stroke the ball well the last night to get the winners' nod, while Cas Kuharski has a 1-point lead in Tuesday night's play over Hal Smith in Bracket 4.
